years, originally in the milling business, but not over successful. Commenced business as above in 1912, and appears just making a living.

GENERAL INFORMATION

Declined statement when called upon by traveler Feb. 11,

1915, but investment in stock, fixtures, etc., is small, and would not exceed $300. So far as known this is the extent of his available means, and after allowing for debts, exemptions, etc., net worth is limited.

Has just a fair location, business is small, and prospects do not look very flattering. The last iron furnace here will be dismantled shortly, and he will lose some trade by there moving away. Is reported a little slow in meeting payments, and the account is held largely to cash.

3-4-15

To take odw. control August 11, 1915.

Investigation made at this time reveals little or no material improvement in his affairs. Doing just a moderate business and apparently making little in excess of a living from the venture. Fairly well mentioned personally and it is the general impression that the account is too light for outside credit. Net worth conceded to be about a few hundred dollars, and prospects only fair. 8-11-1915
